Unsinkable is the first book in the newest adventure trilogy by Gordon Korman. He has written several similar series before which I read years ago (I particularly liked his Island and Dive series) though this is his first with a historical setting. As the first book in the series it mostly introduces the characters and their situations, and how they meet on board the ship.

When you put the covers of all three books together it makes the whole ship - COOL! Equipped with the finest luxuries of the time and deemed 'virtually unsinkable', the massive vessel was truly a spectacle. When the Titanic sunk after a glancing blow from an iceberg in the Atlantic Ocean, 1,512 of the 2,240 passengers on board were killed, making it one of the largest peacetime maritime disasters in history.
